IMMIGRATION LOOMING UP

Washington Is Looking On Campbell's Trip With Interest.

By Ernest G. Walker.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—With the approach of midsummer and the cessation of governmental activities, apart from Congress, the events of strictly local importance to Hawaii in Washington are narrowing in number and magnitude. The immigration errand, of Mr. A. J. Campbell, is possibly of leading interest in that category. He has rounded out his work here very satisfactorily, obtained about everything he asked for and has gone to New York. If he has not already sailed for Europe, it will be only a few days before he is aboard ship.

He was assured before his departure from Washington that an immigration agent and a surgeon of the Marine Hospital Service would be detailed to Madeira to survey the immigrants whom he will muster at that port for the voyage to Hawaii. These agents of the Government will give their assistance toward weeding out of the company any undesirable. The physically unfit, if such there should be, will be detected by the Marine Hospital Surgeon. The immigration inspector will be an expert who can aid Mr. Campbell in many ways.

There is promise of considerable agitation in Congress at its next session over the immigration question. How much legislation will develop is, of course, a matter of conjecture. The immigration Commission, of which Senator Dillingham is chairman, will make an exhaustive report, before next March, probably in December or January. Some recommendations for legislation are expected, although the members of the Commission do not talk now as though they looked for much action by Congress for some time. It has already been announced in Hawaii that Senator Dillingham intends to visit the islands in the autumn to study conditions there with reference to Oriental laborers. Some very thorough inquiries on that subject are now under way on the Pacific Coast. Senator Dillingham, however, said to the Advertiser correspondent today that he had not fully (Continued on Page Eight.)

MAN AND HORSE DROWNED IN RIVER

Thomas F. Kelly, an employee of the Hawaiian Irrigation Company, was drowned in the Waipio river last Tuesday while attempting to cross it on his return home from Kukuiahae where he had been to obtain supplies at the main office of the company.

His horse was drowned with him, and although he was alone at the time and nobody saw the accident, indications point to a desperate struggle for life made by man and beast in the rapid stream.

The horse was found the same evening, which led to the conclusion that Mr. Kelly had been drowned, but although careful search was made, it was not until two days later that his body was found, wedged in between two large boulders where it had been carried by the water. The body was buried in Waipio gulch.

The deceased was born in Rutland, Vermont, May 4, 1876. He enlisted in the army at the beginning of the Spanish American war and spent several years in the Philippines. He was a member of Theodore Roosevelt Camp No. 1, U. S. W. V.

C. F. JUDD AT SEATTLE FAIR

Hawaiian Exhibit There Scoring a Great Success.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 11, 1909.

Editor Advertiser.—The Hawaiian exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition is about the most popular and well attended of any on the grounds. I make this statement not only as a kamaaina, but also through the eyes of a malihini on account of a sojourn in this country of several years. Every time that I have visited the exposition I have, of course, visited the building devoted to the Hawaiian exhibit and have always found it thronged with visitors from all parts of this and other countries who seem to be delighted with the display and who are thus educated with a knowledge of what our islands really are and what they produce.

Many and curious are the remarks which are made by some of them. I saw one group of country people look at a bunch of dry cocoanuts and heard them remark, "What large chestnuts." Another person remarked that he did not know that cocoanuts grew in the ground. He was looking at a sprouted coconut growing in a sake tub.

About the most attractive advertisement of the islands seems to be the Hawaiian girls who serve the delicious pineapple to the guests at the elegant koa tables. Frequent have been the remarks upon the beauty of the girls and some are contented merely to look into their chocolate eyes and imagine the life in the tropic islands where the surf beats a pulsing lullaby on the white coral sands and nature gives forth abundantly from her best store.

The model of the islands is a work of art and is well located in the center of the building. The idea of the islands rising out of the water is well conceived and the whole arrangement gives one a comprehensive idea of just what the islands are.

The pyramid of cocoanuts and the huge pineapple built out of the individual fruit as well as the great variety of fruit preserved in jars, give the people excellent instruction as to just what the islands produce in this line. The coffee and rice display are instructive as well, and the model of the old Hawaiian palace, plastered with brown sugar, is about completed and is a fine example of our leading industry.

The display of the beautiful Hawaiian woods and botanical specimens naturally interested me, a forester, to a very great extent and Mr. Hosmer is to be complimented upon the excellence of this exhibition.

The work of the school children finds many interested admirers and signal but and the exhibit of the Hawaiian Beekeepers Association give one a good idea of some of the allied industries. The Gurrey pictures of Hawaiian types are admired for their artistic value and Howard Hitchcock's paintings of the volcano and Hawaiian landscape are viewed by all with the greatest admiration. Like Ulysses' sailors, whose ears were stopped with wax to shut out the Sirens' song, I felt that my eyes should be blindfolded when Hitchcock's painting of the Von Holt trail on the summit of the Waianae Mountains at Naaukuli Valley gave me its mute appeal to return and once again hunt the wild goats along the rocky cliffs, and his painting of the sands at Mana seemed almost to bark welcome back to the islands.

The exhibit in the Government Building under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute contains much of interest that is Hawaiian. A life size group in a glass case shows the primitive industry of making tapa in a very instructive manner. Other cases contain primitive Hawaiian implements, a small feather cape, samples of school work and pictures of those who have been prominent in Hawaiian governmental affairs. Among the latter I was glad to see the picture of my grandfather, Dr. G. P. Judd.

The Hawaiian fish swim about in two of the tanks in the fisheries department of the Government Building as much at home as if in their own tropical waters. A very happy selection has been made, in this case, for the tanks contain fish of the queerest size, colors and shapes and excel all others in the building in the curiosity and wonder which they (Continued on Page Five.)

HIGGINBOTHAM UNDER ARREST

Fred Makino Higginbotham was placed under arrest by United States Marshal Hendry yesterday morning on a charge brought against him by the Federal authorities, accusing him of having obscene pamphlets and postcards in his possession. Makino was promptly brought before United States Commissioner George Davis, held to answer before Judge Dole and then allowed to go on his own recognizance upon the suggestion of United States Attorney Breckons.

The penalty for the offense upon which Higginbotham stands charged is a serious one, the United States Statutes allowing a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment. During the proceedings before Commissioner Davis, Higginbotham did not seem anxious to admit his real name but finally entered a plea of guilty under the name of Higginbotham alias Makino.

Two arrests were made yesterday of Japanese connected with the agitation among the laborers. Fushino and Miuuchi, the leaders in the riot at Wai-pahu on June 8 and who escaped punishment by a disagreement of the jury were again taken into custody yesterday morning charged with having imprisoned Police Officer Wills and Special Policeman Scoville on the day of the riot.

Attorney General Hemenway and Attorney Prosser appeared in court for the Territory and Lightfoot for the defendants. Prosser asked that the bail be fixed at $250, but a compromise was finally reached at $200, to be forthcoming at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in the absence of which the defendants will be remanded to the custody of the authorities. A second and similar charge is pending against Fushino and Miuuchi for detaining the Japanese contractor Tsunoda during the progress of the riot trial.

Jotaro Mikawa, the leader in the Wai-pahu riot, now charged with unlawfully escaping from an officer, secured a bondsman yesterday in the person of Bert Lightfoot, the son of Attorney Lightfoot, counsel for the Japanese. Mikawa brought M. Chiya into court as a surety, but it was found that Chiya could not qualify because he did not possess any personal property.

PLANTERS AGREE TO TRY RUSSIANS

Experiment Will Be Made With Sixty Families From Harbin.

That Russian immigrants will be given a chance here is assured. The Planters' Association yesterday asked the Board of Immigration to bring in forty families and steps will at once be taken to comply with the request.

This means that A. W. Perelstrous, the Vladivostok contractor who is now visiting here, will leave for the Orient, probably by the next steamer, to make the necessary arrangements. Expecting some such action on the part of the planters, Perelstrous delayed his projected Hawaii trip Friday, in order that he might be at hand.

Friday Secretary Atkinson of the Board of Immigration said: "We are only waiting requests for Russian laborers that will justify us in bringing them here. The matter is up to the employers."

The Hawaiian Development Company has already expressed a desire to try sixty families, so it is probable that the first lot of immigrants will consist of 100 families.

Some time ago the labor committee of the Planters' Association talked the matter over with Perelstrous, and it is understood that a favorable report was made to the executive committee of the association.

The first immigrants will be brought from Harbin. They can be transported from there to the port of embarkation for $3.50 each. Thus the greatest item of expense will be the steamer fares from the Orient here. It is therefore felt that the experiment can be made at a very reasonable cost to the Territory.

POLICE HAPPENINGS.

Pak Cham Bo is the gay and festive youth among the Koreans. Indeed, he is quite the lady killer, and has a reputation in that line. It was while trying to live up to his reputation that he ran foul of the law and was arrested yesterday by the police.

Pak's reputation was acquired through his having at various times run off with the wives of other men. He has done this no less than three times, but the last time proved his undoing, for he was caught in the act and will have to answer to the law. When the Territorial authorities get through with him, Mr. Breckons may want to see him.

The Usual Result.

It is proverbial that the way of the peacemaker is hard—or words to that effect. The truth of this was exemplified in the case of J. Kalamu Lihu yesterday morning when Judge Andrade gave him ninety days on the reef for his efforts to restore the entente cordiale in the family of Sam Kawahae of Iwilei. J. Kalamu Lihu's mistake seems to have been in using a beer bottle as a pacifier.

Kawahae, it appears, was enjoying a fight with his father when J. Kalamu butted in and tried to reconcile the belligerent father and son. The son didn't want to be reconciled and told the peacemaker so in vigorous and expressive words. J. Kalamu retorted by cracking him on the head with a beer bottle. For all of which J. Kalamu Lihu will spend the next three months in jail.

Boyle's Little Joke.

Strange how little sense of humor the stern guardians of the peace have. Just because one Boyle, a sailor on the Troquois, having acquired a drop or two too much, stepped up to a passer-by on the street and poked him under the right ear, the police gathered Boyle in and locked him up. Somehow they couldn't see the point of the joke as he did.

Kalamu was given a bed at the city hotel last night after he had acquired a skin full. The "Big Stick" will probably have a big head this morning.

Phelps to Admiral, W. S. Benson to Captain, Frank Marble to Commander, and L. M. Overstreet to Lieutenant-Commander.

PORTLAND, Oregon, July 24.—Dr. R. A. M. Collins was today shot and killed by his wife, whose act was inspired through jealousy. Dr. and Mrs. Collins were married last year in Honolulu.

ATCHERLEY ORDERED BACK TO THE ASYLUM

Dr. John Atcherley's attempt to escape from the "care, custody and control" of Dr. Peterson, superintendent of the insane asylum, did not meet with success yesterday, although he had the services of Attorney T. M. Harrison as his representative in the proceedings before Circuit Judge Robinson.

The hearing was on the return on the writ of habeas corpus which was granted by Judge De Bolt. Attorney Harrison appeared to be in good legal form, although he said that he did not feel able to indulge in any lengthy argument on the general merits of the case, but insisted that his client was entitled to have his sanity tested before a jury of twelve men.

The Territory was represented by Attorney-General Hemenway and City and County Attorney Cathcart, and they took the ground that the commitment of Atcherley to the asylum was entirely legal and that even if the law covering insanity cases, enacted by the last Legislature, was declared unconstitutional the former law would then become operative, and under which the District Magistrate possessed the same powers as by the new law.

Judge Robinson stated that he did not have any doubt about the new statute being constitutional, and concurred in the views expressed by counsel for the Territory that the rights of Dr. Atcherley on appeal would be conserved by depositing a bond and notice of appeal to a jury in the Circuit Court. After Judge Robinson had rendered his oral decision yesterday, Mrs. Atcherley declared that her husband was being mistreated at the asylum, bringing a prompt denial from Dr. Peterson. Judge Robinson decided that he would get a first-hand knowledge of Atcherley's accommodations at the asylum and so accompanied Dr. Peterson and his ward back to the institution. He stated on his return that the protest of Mrs. Atcherley was utterly without foundation.

OPIUM CURE IS BEING IMPORTED

The opium cure importations of Hawaii are rapidly assuming an important aspect, according to customs officials. During the last few months the importations have increased rapidly, until now the shipments are regularly looked for by the collectors of revenue.

The cure imported is nearly all of one kind, that introduced by the Anti-Opium League of China. The league has been carrying on its work in Hawaii for some time past, and the inspectors long ago became acquainted with the little packages which contain the deadliest known enemy of the deadliest habit with which man is afflicted. But whereas the cure formerly came in single parcels, it is now coming in case lots.

This cure is distributed free by the Anti-Opium League in China, and it is understood that the same course of procedure is being followed here. The customs authorities prophesy that if the cure is really efficacious, there will be very little demand for the essence of the poppy in Hawaii in the near future.

QUEENS HOSPITAL STAFF IS CHOSEN

The trustees of the Queen's Hospital met yesterday morning and elected the staff of surgeons and physicians for the hospital during the coming year. The personnel of the staff is as follows: Surgeons—Dr. V. E. Collins, Dr. Geo. Herbert, Dr. James R. Judd and Dr. C. B. Wood.

Immediately after the meeting, Secretary George W. Smith sent out letters to the different surgeons and physicians, notifying them of their election.
